There are seven Managing Partners of Praesta in France. We have set up our firm to reflect the confidence and trust which is so characteristic of our client relationships, with true parity of status and responsibility amongst us.

Obviously, each individual coach has his own personality, style, and experience, which means that we can ensure that each client has a coach who 'fits' well. We have all had senior positions internationally, we are both individualist and committed to the cause of collective endeavour, and we strive to offer the most professional - and the most human – service available today.
